

Milk Jug People

These are life-sized "puppets" that make great extra characters in story-telling and drama skits. They are so big that you can have them wear regular clothes or costumes.

Warning: Milk jug people find their way to unusual places! Once, one dressed in a Pharaoh's outfit was left sitting at the church's organ after a children's ministry workshop as a joke. Unfortunately, he wasn't found until after the Sunday worship service had begun the next day! Oops!

A few more pictures from a recent modern-day use of milk jug men in the life of someone special to us...
